Ebonheart said:DivineClio said:Quote by Ebonerath: Ps: I don't think I have to tell you that calculating HP converting on drives to achieve maximum conversion is a must? Tip:1)pick unit 2)makes X group of 35 3)??? 4)PROFIT!!! (The demon you will get is (hp x group) of dead stack) MATH, B1CHT! No, you don't have to tell me that Divine. However it seems I have to explain how demon convert works for you. A Pit Lord can revive the demons of the 50hp/pit lord. Now to resurrect the maximum amount of demons, you want to meet the magical conversion numbers, which are the number of health points that resurrect a perfect set of demons. For example, a 350 health point sacrificed stack will revive 10 demons. This will require 7 Pit Lords to do. Hell Hound is the easiest sacrificed creature in terms of health conversion, as they come with the number 25 hp/hell hound, which means a stack of 14 hell dogs will give you a perfect resurrection. Impsna in greater numbers and with only 4 health / imp. So the best conversion you can do with imps will be with 88x imps then 350/4 = 87.5 and monsters need to be rounded up. That is if you can not acquire 175 imps for a perfect conversion (which will require a lot of lv 1 stay on the map and / or extra cities). The gogs are the most annoying ones to convert effectively and the numbers here depend on your map losses. 350/13= 27 gogs required. So I'm sorry Divine, but it seems you need to ameliorate your knowledge of game mechanics. Coming back if there is an update and putting 5 stars Things I look forward to in this game is more added race and more variety in drives and randomization! Cosmetics and Unlockable missing Update: the latest update adds a difficulty setting that makes the game much easier to play. Still a few bugs but this change makes this much better to play and allows you to learn the game without getting stomped. Much appreciated! The game shows a lot of promise but has some annoying bugs and is ultimately not fun to play. Trying to stop AI on the maps is almost impossible and you end up spending more time trying to reclaim your resource locations than you do expanding.
